

08. PRACTICE : C2 UMBILICUS

DURATION : 08:42

STUDY SHEET

COURSE SUMMARY

This video offers an immersion into umbilical practice, focusing on the importance of the cranio-caudal axis and its connection to embryonic development. Practitioners will learn to intuitively position themselves on this axis, to feel the circulation of nourishing energies, and to create an energetic current conducive to harmony. Key concepts such as nidation, deviation of the midline, and the impact of birth trauma or transgenerational influences are explored. Understanding the dynamics of conception, including the importance of IVF, and the creation of a life hologram are addressed, showing how these elements can free children from inherited patterns, thus paving the way for healing and balance.

UMBILICUS PRACTICE: UNDERSTANDING AND ENERGETIC RELEASE

In this practice, we will explore the cranio-caudal axis and its importance in embryonic development and connection with the mother.

SENSITIVITY AND INTUITION

Begin by gently placing yourself on the axis, becoming aware of the notochord and its trophic power. Remain in a state of non-doing, allowing specific energies to flow: earth, water, fire.

At some point, you may feel one finger lift off, then a second, allowing the necessary energy to pass through to the person. Trust your intuition to guide this process. You will notice a state of global homogeneity setting in.

CONNECTION WITH THE MOTHER

Remember that you are in contact with the moment of nidation, that crucial first embryonic moment. Allow yourself to be carried by the information that emerges, be it a word, a gesture, or a look. It is essential not to overload the system, but to allow a current of energy to circulate.

DEVIATIONS AND RECOGNITION

A child who fails to return to their midline has difficulty living. During their development, they explore their environment primarily through the mouth, thus receiving essential information, notably their mother's vaginal flora.

It is crucial to recognise deviations that may occur at conception or during pregnancy. Significant events, such as deaths in the family or traumas, can influence the child's development. These transgenerational patterns must be taken into account to allow for reintegration into the original midline.

BIRTH TRAUMAS

Birth traumas can also have a significant impact. For example, a child suffering from regurgitation may have a compressed sacrum due to a difficult birth. It is essential to release this area to restore proper function.

CONCEPTION AND POLARITY

When a child is conceived by in vitro fertilisation (IVF), it is crucial to recognise the moment of encounter between the sperm and the oocyte. This moment creates an energy field and a primitive cranio-caudal axis.

Follicular and nurse cells play a key role in organising this electromagnetic field, also carrying transgenerational information. This information can manifest in the child's genetic code, revealing ancestral traumas.

HOLOGRAM OF LIFE

This process of conception and development creates a hologram that integrates the individual's past, present, and future. Understanding these dynamics allows children to be freed from inherited patterns and offered a path towards healing and balance.

In conclusion, the umbilicus practice is a deep exploration of the links between the embryo, the mother, and transgenerational influences, thus allowing a reconnection to the midline and vital energy.