

5. The Cell: Metabolic Fields and Differentiation

COURSE SUMMARY

This session on biodynamic embryology teaches the fundamentals of cellular development, explaining the trajectory from stem cell to differentiation. With essential concepts such as cleavage, polarizing substances, and metabolic fields, students will understand how cells communicate and interact. Emphasis is placed on the importance of polarization in oocyte formation, as well as on the types of cellular communication, illustrating concrete examples to enrich the understanding of embryogenesis.

PLANCHES ANATOMIQUES & SCHÉMAS (2)

 FIG. 1

FIG. 1 FIG. 1

 FIG. 2

FIG. 2 FIG. 2